Nano, explained.

Three terms describe different parts of a polished tile.

01

Vitrified body

The dense vitrified body is the foundation of the tile. It is different from its decorative design and from the treatment of its surface.

02

Soluble Salt design

Soluble Salt describes the decoration technology. Colour decoration is applied before firing; the face is subsequently polished to create its glossy appearance.

03

Nano surface treatment

Nano refers to treatment of the polished surface, intended to fill microscopic surface pores and support easier cleaning. It is not a separate type of tile body.

Solo Wood

Soft movement. Quiet character.

The lighter designs reward a closer look: compare the direction of the grain, the movement of the veins and the warmth of each shade on an actual sample.

Plan it. Care for it.

Interior inspiration

Living rooms, bedrooms and dining areas are natural places to explore the polished appearance of Nano / Soluble Salt flooring.

Before laying

Confirm the shade and size batch, dry-lay a few pieces and approve the pattern direction. Use professional installation and appropriate joints. Before grouting, confirm whether any product-specific surface protection is required.

Keep the polished look

- 01 Sweep or vacuum loose grit before mopping.
- 02 Use a mild, neutral cleaner at the recommended dilution.
- 03 Rinse with clean water and dry with a soft cloth.
- 04 Wipe up spills promptly. Avoid concentrated acids and unapproved waxes or surface coatings.

Choose for the space

For wet areas, ramps, exterior flooring or demanding traffic, confirm the selected product's suitability for the site. A glossy appearance is not an anti-slip rating.

For specialised cleaning or sealing, request product-specific advice before treatment.
